Erdoğan's Loss In Turkey Is Israel's Gain.

When Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdoğan declared, during the lead-up to the country's March 31 municipal elections, that "whoever wins Istanbul, wins Turkey," he couldn't have imagined that the catchy campaign slogan was going to energize his rivals and bode ill for his own continued reign of terror. If it didn't work the way he thought, all he had to do was deem the election invalid on the basis of some phony "administrative error" and force a new round of polls. This he did on May 6 by having Turkey's "Supreme Election Board" annul the Istanbul results. What he didn't realize, however, was that the extra few weeks before Sunday's Istanbul election "redo" would work in Imamoğlu's favor, enabling him to win by a wider margin than the first time. Imagine the Turkish tyrant's horror at the massive crowds of secular CHP supporters, gathering in the streets and hanging from balconies to cheer Imamoğlu. The same Erdoğan whose party had every electoral advantage with all the state's institutions and controlled media outlets on his side. It would be a gross understatement to say that Imamoğlu was fighting an uphill battle. Which made his stunning victory that much sweeter and more significant. It was a truly happy moment not only for Turks, but for the West as a whole. Erdoğan's role as mayor of Istanbul from 1994 to 1998 had catapulted him to an 11-year premiership in 2003 and to the presidency in 2014. Perhaps Imamoğlu is now on a similar path. ## Iraq Celebrates Naming Babylon a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

It was from the 4,300-year-old city that Nebuchadnezzar sent his vast army to Jerusalem to put down an uprising and bring the Jews back as slaves.

Iraq on Friday celebrated the UNESCO World Heritage Committee's decision to name the historic city of Babylon a World Heritage Site in a vote held in Azerbaijan's capital, years after Baghdad began campaigning for the site to be added to the list. The city on the Euphrates River is about 55 miles south of Baghdad and once was a main tourist attraction before Iraq suffered one war after another in the past four decades. (timesofisrael.com 7/6)

Iranian Ayatollah to Address Muslim Congress in Phoenix, Claims "Islam Guarantees Human Rights"

Unless, of course, you're a woman, or a non-Muslim, or in any of the other groups for whom Sharia prescribes institutionalized discrimination and harassment. Why is the Muslim Congress having an Iranian ayatollah address its conference in Phoenix? Will he lead them in screams of "Death to America?" Is any law enforcement authority concerned about the implications of this, or are they all too afraid to be labeled "Islamophobic"? (jihadwatch.com 7/2)

Biotech & Human Identity: The Danger Of Tampering With Our Genetic Code.

Our genetic code is a critical element in defining us as human beings and as individuals, and attempts to manipulate it raise ethical and worldview questions. Biotechnology is developing at a very rapid rate. Let's understand the distinction between Somatic Cell Gene Therapy (SCGT) and Germline Gene Therapy (GGT). The former, in current technologies, seeks to cure disorders caused by a single gene such as hemophilia or cystic fibrosis localized to a part of a person's body. SCGT does not change all the cells in a person's body, only those necessary to correct the disorder. This is relatively uncontroversial in its current form. Germline Gene Therapy modifies sperm and egg cells, thereby changing permanently the genetic makeup of the entire organism. Unlike SCGT, the changes introduced by GGT are passed down to all of the modified organism's descendants. This raises serious ethical questions to the unknown effect it might have on future generations, who would be rendered part of a human experiment without ability to give consent. As a result it has been banned in humans by Australia, Canada, Germany, the Netherlands, Switzerland, and Israel. We do not know all the things that genes do, and "correcting" a gene for one problem might create enormous problems elsewhere in future generations. (prophecynewswatch.com 7/2)

Another "Wrongful Birth" Lawsuit As Parents Sue For Mistake of Giving Life.

The very concept of "wrongful birth" is a horrible one with no place in any civilized society, as it enshrines in law the idea that some people are not worthy of being born, that their very birth constitutes a mistake of some kind, and that their existence should have been abruptly ended by abortion. ### The Resurgence of the Feminist Witch.

A self-proclaimed feminist witch said, "The fact that the resurgence of feminism and the popularity of the witch are ascending at the same time is no coincidence: the two are reflections of each other." Pam Grossman, writing for time.com states, "Today, more women than ever are choosing the way of the witch, whether literally or symbolically. They're floating down catwalks and sidewalks in gauzy black clothing and adorning themselves with pentagrams and crystals. They're filling up movie theaters to watch witchy films, and gathering in back rooms and backyards to do rituals and consult tarot cards. They're marching in the streets and casting spells each month to try to constrain the commander-in-chief. Articles keep proclaiming, 'It's the Season of the Witch!' as journalists try to wrap their heads around the mushrooming witch trend. Shades of the spirit of Jezebel herself. Shades of that idol-worshipping seductress from biblical times who emasculated men, silenced the prophets, and practiced sorcery and witchcraft. Jezebel is on the rise. (pnw.com 6/20)

Does God Have Our Attention Yet?

Freak Summer Hailstorm Hits Guadalajara.

A freak summer hailstorm struck the Mexican city of Guadalajara early Sunday, June 30, burying cars and blanketing streets in a thick layer of ice. Local newspaper El Informador reported that more than 1 meter (3.28 feet) of ice covered parts of the city. In addition to burying cars, the storm damaged 457 homes in Guadalajara and the district of Tlaquepaque. Alfaro explained that he had never seen anything like the hail storm before. Sky News reports the storm followed days of hot dry weather with temps hitting 90 degrees. (freedomoutpost.com 7/1)

California Earthquakes. Small communities in the Mojave Desert are reeling from a magnitude 7.1 earthquake; the second major temblor. The first 6.4 quake happened in the same area on July 4, the epicenter near the town of Ridgecrest. There are significant reports of structure fires as a result of gas leaks or gas line breaks throughout the city. These are the most powerful quakes in Southern California for about two decades and have been followed by a swarm of more than 200 aftershocks as high as 5.4. On July 4th a 6.4 and 5.4; July 5th a 7.1 and 5.0 tremors all hitting the Ridgecrest area. As of July 9, 1,289 quakes (2.5 or bigger) have hit California over last week. (freedomoutpost.com 7/5, USA Today 7/5, earthquaketrack.com, sfgate.com 7/9)

Baked Alaska: It's Beach Time as a Heat

Wave Hits Cities Across the State. Bears and moose are seeking relief in garden sprinklers. Stores are out of ice. Kids are lamenting the cancellation of Independence Day fireworks. Anchorage, and much of Alaska, is shattering temperature records amid a heat wave accompanied by wildfires that have blanketed the city in smoke. The state's largest city hit the 90-degree mark on Thursday, breaking a record of 85 degrees set half a century ago. Forecasters expect temperatures to linger in the 80s into the coming week. Such conditions would hardly cause anyone to break a sweat in either the Lower 48 or Hawaii. But Alaskans don't normally get baked. Anchorage usually hits 70 only a dozen times a summer, and rarely reaches 80. More than 100 wildfires are burning across Alaska, prompting evacuation orders and air-quality alerts. (latimes.com 7/6)
